

Some Characteristic Sayings of Sam Jones.

A woman is naturally a very sharp trader, and very few women have any conscience when it comes to a trade. You sell an old pair of trousers for more than your husband gave for them new and then brag about it. You will hire a woman to cook for you at $4 a month then brag about how cheap you got her. You will go to a store and give $4 a yard for a piece of goods, and the more it costs the more you like it, and then you will come over to sister Brown, a poor good woman in your church, and give her half a dollar for making it. And if the devil doesn't get you it is because he ain't got anything against sister Brown. The meanest woman in the world is one who will give $4 a yard for her dress and then go over to that poor old woman, who is a member of her church, and bring her down to the last nickel she can get her to make it for. I would rather give $2 a yard for that dress and give sister Brown $20 for making it, than give $4 a yard for the dress and give sister Brown $4.55 for making it, and what buttons are left over. Let us quit at that.

Love is a great leveler. It knocks down all obstacles. I was preaching in a town in Georgia once and was discussing brotherly love; and when I got to the point where brotherly love makes you love all alike, they told me this: "When sister A gets sick how good they are all to her. She lives in the finest house in the city, and has the best cook and servants; and when she is sick all the people are sending her good things to eat. They bring it into her room and the sick woman says: 'Take it out into the dining room.' They take it in and set it down on the table and the servants eat it up. She hardly ever sees the food. See how the ladies go to see her! By and by the doctor says that she must cut off all company. Then they muffle out the dog bell and the servants go in the back way every hour asking how Mrs. A is. And I said 'Thank God, I think I have been in one community that is good to the sick!' But out in the suburbs on the hillside is poor sister Snie. I never heard the doctor say that she must not have any more company; I never heard of any servants going down to find out how Mrs. Snie was. No one went there bearing her good things to eat. And when I got through the sermon a poor old soul came and took me by the hand and said, 'You just told them the truth; that is what they do.' And I asked, 'What is your name?' and she said, 'My name is Snie.' And sure enough her name was Snie, and she lived on the hillside and they had been treating her that way. Let me say to you, if you can not help but one family in need, let that be the family which needs the help.

I tell you what tickles me to see an old sinner come and stand up in an old lane, dwarf member of the church, and lay him down, and measure by him. 'Look here, boys; I am as long and broad and good as this member of the church.' I would die, if I was a decent man, to lay myself down by the side of such a man. Why don't you go and pick out one of these grand old Christians. You would look like a rat-terrier lying by the side of an elephant. You quit measuring by these dwarfs.

I have heard it said that a big nose was a good thing, it was a sign of intellectuality; that a big nose was a sign of character; of great character; a big chin is a good sign—a sign of courage; big ears are a sign of generosity. I expect some of you pastors ought to get some ear fertilizer. There are more little possum-eared church members over this county than you can count. I want to tell you, brethren, that it takes more money to run one old red-nosed drunkard than it does to run any member of the church.

The gospel is a line of wagon shops on the way to heaven. I rolled my old broken-down humanity under the wagon shop of the cross; and in a few minutes I was fixed up from tongue to coupling pole. And I rolled out, but didn't get a mile before down went a wheel. I looked up the roadside and saw a shop, and the wagon maker said: 'Bring your wagon here; I'll fix it up.' I didn't go two miles before smash went the axle. Then I broke the tongue; and from the breaking and mending I don't think that by this time I have a linch-pin left of the wagon I started with.

There are plenty of people that want to go to Heaven on their own schedule. They want to drink a little, lie a little and gamble occasionally, Everybody in this country had an aching tooth, and the first dentist that won't hurt them they are going to have pull it out. I have been hunting a painless dentist for a long time, but they don't live in this country. They might fill you with laughing gas and pull your head off. A great many people object to pointed preaching because it pains them, they say. This suggests the story of the old lady who daughter's tooth ached. She sent for a dentist. He came and pulled out a pair of old-fashioned forceps. The pain was the biggest thing in this business.

GIVE THANKS

Says Gov. Beckham For Unprecedented Prosperity.

Frankfort, Ky.—Gov. J. C. W. Beckham, of Kentucky, issued his Thanksgiving proclamation. It follows: "That the people of Kentucky may properly observe our country's most hallowed custom, I hereby appoint, in accordance with the action of the president of the United States, Thursday, November 22, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer throughout the commonwealth. On that day all business should be suspended; the eager pursuit for wealth should cease; the ceaseless struggle for profit and gain should give place to quiet and peace, while a grateful people, in their usual places of worship, shall give thanks to a generous and merciful God, who has so richly blessed us. Our people have prospered beyond all precedent, our nation and state are the envy of the world. In material wealth we are with out an equal. Nature has lavished upon us her choicest bounties. The sunshine of peace and contentment sheds its genial light upon a happy land. To deserve and retain these things a due recognition should be given to the divine source from which they come. In place of boasting of our greatness let us humbly praise and thank Him to whom we owe all. The strength and welfare of our republic, the endurance of its splendid institutions and the progress of our Christian civilization must depend upon the purpose of this day and recognize our obligations to the providence of God. In celebrating this occasion let us remember that no services of song and no words of eloquent praise are so expressive of gratitude to the Almighty as are deeds of charity and kindness to the poor and helpless among us."

Nervous Worn-Out

If you are in this condition, your nerve force is weak—the power is giving out, the organs of your body have slowed up, and do their work imperfectly. This failure to do the work required, clogs the system and brings distress and disease. When the nerves are weak the heart is unable to force the life-giving blood through your veins; the stomach fails to digest food; the kidneys lack power to filter impurities from the blood, and the poisonous waste remains in the system to breed disease. Nerve energy must be restored. Dr. Miles' Nervine will do it, because it strengthens the nerves; it is a nerve medicine and tonic, that rebuilds the entire nervous system.

"Several years ago I was all broken down, I was nervous, worn-out, could not sleep and could not eat. I was doctored for months, and finally the doctor said he was going to bottle for me. I began taking Dr. Miles' Nervine, and in a few days I was better, and I became strong and healthy, and now I am well."—H. C. Cunningham, 138 Elmwood Ave., Albany, N. Y. Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it does, he will refund your money. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

APPEALS TO GROWERS

To Stand By Each Other

In Organizing
District.

Smithfield, Ky., Nov. 7, '06. Gentlemen: I am writing this letter to you at an important time and on an important matter, one in which you are all interested. Whether farmers or tenants, we all realize the value of doing the right thing at the right time. We have all planted corn a week too early, or a week too late. We have all seen tobacco cut too green, or left until it became too ripe. We have all seen a big load stuck in the mud, and stay until a few men put their shoulders to the wheel and by doing the right thing at the right time helped the horses move the load to solid ground. Now, I am sure you will understand me when I say that RIGHT NOW is the RIGHT TIME to organize the Burley Growers' and do it quickly. We can do it if we do the right thing and in this case the right thing is to tell the farmers and tenants what we are doing and why. If we all put our shoulders to the wheel of organization during the next thirty days, our whirlwind campaign will be a success. That is, its close will see the Burley Growers' organized and ready for business. Now the organizers are going to do their part. What are you growers going to do? The success or failure of the growers' organization is in your hands.

Organizers will canvas every county in the Burley District within the next thirty days. Now let every one, both land owner and tenant, take a half day off and hear what the organizer has to say. I do not believe I am asking too much, just one half of a day. Then put your shoulder to the wheel, and get into the organization, one pull, all pull, the result 15c per pound for Burley Tobacco. Did you ever stop to think that Mr. Duke's Company could not buy your tobacco unless you offered it for sale? That being the case and the fact that he has to have your tobacco in order to keep his plants running, so that he may be able to declare a little dividend of $20,000,000 or so, is proof enough that he will pay equitable prices for your tobacco, when he can no longer buy at his price.

The Hon. H. B. Sherman, National Organizer for the American Society of Equity will make a speech at Springfield, November 26.

The Board of Control has elected Mr. C. M. Hanna, of Shelby county, as manager with full authority to act for the Burley District. We all have the utmost confidence in Mr. Hanna's doing the right thing at the right time, and I want to ask every one, by that, I mean land owner and tenant to go to Springfield on November 26 and say by his presence that we believe in organization and we are here to lend C. M. Hanna and the Board of Control a helping hand that we may receive 15c for our tobacco. Come and see 40,000 lbs. of tobacco ground into fertilizer.

Yours truly,
H. E. SWAIN.

No Printers In Penitentiary.

Until a short time ago an ably conducted and quite well edited little paper was published within the walls of the Ohio penitentiary. It had an assured circulation, and to all appearances was destined to live long and prosper. But it disappeared without warning, and inquiry as to the cause developed the fact that there was not a single convict in the institution who could handle type. The last printer in the "pen" had served his time, and secured employment in Cincinnati, where they made him superintendent, and there was none to take his job in Columbus. Nor has there been since, although there is plenty of other talent to be had. For instance, there are enough bankers there more than twenty and several on the way) to start a clearing-house and enough lawyers to take care of all the business the frenzied financiers can bring them, to say nothing of doctors, brokers and other "eminently respectable" citizens gone wrong. [Maysville Bulletin.]

BILL THORNE

Saves a Negro From the Electric Chair.

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 16.—In order to save from the electric chair the grandson of the old colored mammy who nursed him and who was a slave in his family years ago. Lieutenant-Governor William Thorne, of Kentucky, journeyed to this city Wednesday from his home in Eminence, Ky. He secured the services of a prominent criminal lawyer to defend the prisoner and also appeared in court in his behalf. His efforts were successful, and though charged with first-degree wife murder, the accused was allowed to plead guilty to manslaughter, and was sentenced to the State Reformatory at Mansfield.

The young man is Andrew Watts, aged nineteen years, who killed his wife, Anna, is a George street resort August 24 last. Watts had been married but a short time when his wife tired of the Kentucky home and came to this city, where she entered a resort. Watts found her in the George street place and killed her. He made his escape, but was captured later and indicted by the grand jury for first-degree murder.

Watts had no friends here and wrote Col. Thorne, Lieutenant-Governor of Kentucky, in whose family his grandmother had been a slave. His appeal was not in vain, and Col. Thorne immediately interested himself in the case. He found that there was mitigating circumstances and immediately employed Attorney Raymond Rathiff to defend Watts.

During the hearing of the charges against Watts, Lieutenant-Governor Thorne occupied a seat beside Judge Murphy and listened attentively to the testimony. The prisoner was deeply gratified to the man who had come to his aid and saved him from the electric chair. At the Reformatory he will be given an opportunity to learn a trade and may in time be pardoned.

Marion Items.

Falcon: The races at the fair grounds Tuesday resulted in a victory for Mr. B. W. Phillips with his horse, Peter Penn. Besides Mr. Phillips there were two other entries—Mr. F. L. Dant with his Ashland Maid, and Dr. Robards with his Petro. Three half mile heats were trotted, and the time was 1:59.1. Purse $50. Ashland Maid came second. This is the fastest time made on this track for several years.

Judge George Duckelle, District Attorney for the Western District of Kentucky, was here Monday to cross-examine the witnesses introduced for plaintiff in the case of the First Presbyterian church of this city, against the United States. The claim is for the use of and damage to this church by the Federal soldiers during the Civil War, and amounts to about $6,000. The case is now ready for submission before the Court of Claims at Washington and it is thought the church will soon realize on this claim. Attorney H. S. McElroy represents the plaintiff.

The protracted meeting which has been in progress at the Methodist church for the past two weeks, closed last evening. Dr. J. H. Early, of Elizabethton, who has been assisting the pastor, Rev. C. H. Prather, has delivered some powerful and convincing sermons. The congregations were large and very attentive, and the work that this good man did will long be remembered by the church and scores of people of Lebanon. The lovable Rev. G. W. Lyon will ever hold a green spot in the memory of those who heard him in the song service during this series of meetings. Mr. Prather, the popular and attentive pastor, has done noble work with this meeting.

Mr. John Barker, aged 65 years, died at the Confederate home at Pewee Valley Tuesday night at 11:45 o'clock. Mr. Barker left Lebanon five weeks ago and was admitted to the home in the feeblest of health, seemingly in the last stages of consumption. His condition grew worse rapidly until the end came. He had been a native of Lebanon for many years, where he was known as a kind hearted and sympathetic gentleman. At the outbreak of the Civil War Mr. Barker joined the Confederate army and served throughout the struggle. He enlisted under

Gen. Forrest and fought with him at the battle of Ft. Donaldson. After the battle he joined the cavalry and served under Gen. Morgan, and with him he was captured in Ohio and placed in prison in Chicago for about a year.

What Advertising Does.

Does advertising pay? In bold, black letters, a sign, less than two years ago, containing three words, "Does Advertising Pay?" hung on the wall near the desk of a well known business man of Paducah.

Today that same sign, with its bold, black letters, hangs in the same position, but under the three words are two additional words: "It does."

"In connection with the sign is a story—yes, a lesson—that may prove of interest to all men engaged in business. The story can soon be told, and while the details are essential, they can easily be supplied by the reader.

Less than two years ago a Paducah firm, not content with the amount of business being done, and discouraged by the fact that a large percentage of old stock was yet unsold, and the future gave no evidence of being better.

The sign referred to found its way in some unknown manner to the office wall, and it acted as the suggestion. It was the starting point. It led to the idea of trying, and although the trial was a very limited one, the results soon began to show. Old stocks were disposed of at "sale" prices and new stocks were put in. People began to take on new life. It was a revelation. More, advertising, was done—more trade followed and today there is a different appearing store in Paducah and few people will have to guess long in determining which one it is.

"Does Advertising Pay?" "It Does," is contained on a card in bold black letters hanging on the wall and it explains the secret of the success of a business house that was once regarded as little to the commercial interest of Paducah.—Paducah News Democrat.

MR. RICHARDSON AND THE STATE

PRIMARY.

Hon. J. M. Richardson, editor of the Glasgow Times, has the following on "primaries":

"The Glasgow Times is just as strongly in favor of primary elections as ever. It is the fairest and best method, by all odds, of selecting the nominees of any party."

"But holding the primary election on the same day with the general election is a horse of another color altogether; the net result in Kentucky, so far, being the loss of three congressmen, and the reduction of the democratic majority to the danger point."

"If primary elections are to continue and they surely ought—they should be put under the general election laws just as is done in fourteen other States, all expenses the primary paid out of the state treasury, entry made absolutely free to all candidates, and all parties forced to hold primary elections on the same day. With officials holding the election chosen from all political parties, there is no reason why this character of primary should not be absolutely fair and register an honest expression of the wishes of the voters. Unless this is done, the sooner the last primary the better."

A primary, conducted as suggested above could not be objected to from any source or by any one offering as a candidate for nomination. It would guarantee, absolutely, a "fair deal," and we presume that is what all candidates want. A "fair deal" is very much desired. Who ever heard of a candidate who didn't want a "fair deal"?

Mr. Richardson is the pioneer advocate of the State primary. If we are not very much mistaken he introduced the question through the columns of his paper in 1901. At least he was one of the primary's earliest advocates, and the editorials from his pen in advocacy of State primaries were reproduced throughout the State. When the question was first introduced by Kentucky politicians were employed as editors of the Nelson County Record. We did not like some features of the proposed primary, and prepared quite a lengthy article setting forth our reasons for opposing the departure from the old way of nominating candidates. What we had to say was a sort of an "answer" to one of Mr. Richardson's emphatic and strong efforts in favor of primaries to nominate candidates for State offices.

We suggested in our article practically what Mr. Richardson has suggested above, but we were a little more emphatic in our opposition to the primary unless these safe-guards could be given and the entry made free to all. But our "remarks" were never printed. We were persuaded not to "enlighten" the people, consequently "our edict" was pigeon-holed—temporarily pigeon-holed. The story of the burial of that article, briefly, is as follows: In some way Judge Fulton, of Bardstown, became aware of what we were about to do. He insisted that the article should be "suppressed," we insisted that it shouldn't. But as a favor to him we did not print it in that week's issue of the Record. On the following Saturday night Gov. Beckham came to Bardstown to spend Sunday. He extended an invitation to Judge Fulton and "us" to come out to his house that night after supper and discuss the State primary. The invitation was accepted. The primary was discussed at length by Judge Fulton and Gov. Beckham. We listened. But were not converted. However, we said to the Governor that so far as we were concerned nothing would appear in his home paper, The Record, against the State primary, and that nothing would appear in favor of it. And the Nelson County Record let the State primary conspicuously alone. From that time until now we have said little about State primaries.

But since Mr. Richardson, the father of the primary, is opposed to it, as it is now conducted, and says that it should be "called off" unless the law is changed, we "bob up" to say "Amen."

MISS ANNA GOULD AND NOER COUNT BONI DISCUSSED

They separated a year ago. Divorced last week.

And it is now "Miss Anna Gould" again.

Miss Gould is a daughter of Jav. and a sister of George.

While Boni, at the time of his marriage, was a COUNT! But reports from Paris at this writing bear the intelligence that he's now a neef count son-of-a-gun and a busted boob.

That divorce turned him upside-down, jolted the coin out of his trousers and booted him out into the back yard of DESPAIR—in the tall, foul weeds, where the hounds scuffle for bones.

That's what we call "winging a highfiver." It's worse than shootin' a rabbit a-settin'.

Miss Anna ought to be ashamed of herself.

Rough treatment!

That's no name for it!

It's "painfulmiller" green-apple colic ten miles from a bottle of paregoric.

Mister Castellane, must now accustom himself to soup and dumplings, cheese and crackers, and weenies and cheap peppercorn.

He must "exist"—just exist, that's all.

Boni is worse off than the editor of a country newspaper—he can't buy pants on an advertiser.

He's an orphan!

Send him some old clothes!

Although he doesn't deserve 'em. He has been too wayward; too naughty; he played hooky too often, leaving the Countess miserable and alone while he "beamed" through Paris with other women, pointing out to them the glories of the black night upon whose bosom not a star was pinned.

Poor Boni! you are in a devil of a fix now.

No more one-hundred-thousand-dollar dinners at the expense of Jay Gould, deceased; no more socks at $50 per pair—soup and heelless stockings, that's all that's comin' to you. Be thankful for these blessings.

Anna Gould, no doubt, was a winsome girl—talented and pretty, trained well to cutely cut the capers of our American Smart Set, and that fifteen million dollars she had in her inside pocket made her look like the Goddess of Liberty diamond-crowned upon a pedestal of gold.

And she was a good girl, good enough to become the happy wife of an honest farm boy, or the wife of a hard-working country editor.

But, along comes Boni de Castellane with the proof that he is a real, live Count—tamed. The Gould family, having read of the wonderful and heroic deeds of Counts, thought it would be worth much in glory to have one of their family become a "Countess"—Countess Boni de Castellane. Fifteen million dollars were jingled in the ears of Boni and he tumbled—he consented.

That's the way it happened.

The wedding was a sort of a brass band affair. New York society was frustrated, excitement ran high, and the wool of the pups was made snow-white and tied with ribbons of blue and red.

Boni's picture appeared in all the papers. Attached to him were sashes and swords. And he really looked valuable. None of us dreamed that he would drop below the thirty-cent brand, but laws, how we were fooled. Offer him at auction today in a Georgia nigger settlement and he wouldn't bring 15c in turnips.

He's noer count.

He's worse than very poor white trash.

But, the wedding over, the Count and Countess set sail for Paris, taking with them fifty trunks of fine clothes and about fifteen millions of our American specie, one-fourth of Jay Gould's immense fortune.

In Paris, Boni had fun!

Day and night he had fun, and then some more fun.

Jay Gould's thousands disappeared rapidly, and when the Countess objected Boni abused her; he pinched her! This occurred before the honey-moon had time to round out. And poor Anna realized that she had been bunched. She, no doubt, would have been willing and glad at that time to have swapped her title, "Countess Boni de Castellane," for the very common name of "Mrs. Bill Smith," giving to boot a million or so.

As time went on Boni became wilder and woolier, and pinched her some more. She threatened to sue for divorce. But he believed the title "Countess" was too fascinating, and he continued to do as he pleased.

Less than one year ago he pinched her again! Then she decided that she could live without a title and a noer count son-of-a-gun like Boni.

When Boni saw it coming he yelped and whined, and acted like a tin-canned cur under the floor of the family room.

He wrote a note to the Countess saying he would be very much gratified to encircle her in his arms once more.

She remembered previous pinches, and addressed him as a libertine.

Still being tin-canned he whined some more.

And Count Boni de Castellane is done for. He is in a more miserable state than a fellow with the mumps at a pickle-eating contest. He is moneyless and witless and noer count.

Thus we see the end of a big marriage, in which one sought millions and the other a title.

A miserable end!

These rich American girls have peculiar ideas about husbands.

They have a mania for marrying a fellow with a sash around his waist and a feather in his funny-shaped hat.

They ought to look for MEN! Men with big hearts, and big minds and big souls. America has a few of them—a few hundred thousand of them, scattered through every State in the Union. They can be found on the farms and in the shops, in the stores as clerks, or among the professions. Down here in Kentucky we can find 'em among the tobacco stalks upon the hillsides and along the cornstalks in the valley. Men! but your life they are men. Boots on and jeans breeches stuffed in 'em, but they are men—MEN who wouldn't pinch a woman.

Anna Gould would have been happy had she loved and married one of these fellows—magnanimous and courageous fellows. It is not impossible that she could have loved—loved with all the ardor of a woman's soul—a man with the aroma of the soil upon his garments, possessed not of wealth nor titles, but of an abundance of sound sense. She is no more than human—no more than the mountain lass whose only fortune is the sunlight, and the air, and the wild roses, and the blue skies. With all of her gold Anna Gould is simply a woman—fashioned in form and soul by the hand of God as He has fashioned thousands of other women, and her heart could have been touched by the pleadings of an humble one, and her hand won by him in whose purse is naught of coin. Just an opportunity for courtship was all that was needed. She could have been won by a man in whose bosom throbbed a Great Heart of Love, and she would have been happy. But the doors of Jay Gould's New York mansion were closed to him. And Count Boni de Castellane was hailed a hero. Had Anna Gould gone with an honest boy to where the mountain streams leap over the ruggedness of things, where the song bird warbles love messages to his mate, where God's hand has touched the slopes with many colors and trailed them with leaping vines—had she gone with him to an Eden like this, a thousand miles from the gaudy rendezvous of New York's Four Hundred, and listened to the honest love song of an honest man, Cupid's dart would have pierced her soul and she would have been led to the sacred marriage altar by a MAN—a man who wouldn't have pinched her, and spent eight millions of Jay Gould's ill-gotten coin giving big dinners and buying lap dogs for other women. But Anna Gould would not!

Had she done this she might have been plain Mrs. Bill Brown, but she could have bought Bill a Prince Albert coat, a plug hat and a seat in the United States Senate. What more could she want for Bill? Then she could have bought a red feather for her own hat and a brown stone front in Washington, and been happy—perfectly happy and delighted!

But girls, like Indians, have queer notions. Flashy things and trinkets tickled 'em.

But they scream when pinched!

A gentleman asked us this question a few days ago: "How would you like to vote for Judge Ike Thurman for Governor of Kentucky?" The gentleman knew our sentiments along this line before he interrogated us, and indeed, there are few people in Washington county who do not know just how we feel about a matter like that, therefore the question was superfluous. However, it will do no harm to "commit ourselves in print." Permit us to say that we would rather vote for Judge Thurman for Governor of Kentucky than to vote for Billie Bryan for President of the United States, or to cast a Thanksgiving turkey stuffed with oysters, either one of which are exceedingly well-pleasing. Indeed it would be just as much pleasure to vote for Judge Thurman for Governor as it was to vote for Ben Johnson for Congress. Four years hence we may elect him.

And then Washington county will feel bigger than New York State and taller than Pike's Peak.

Andrew Carnegie announces that he will give $1,000,000 to be used to furthering the propaganda of universal peace. We ought to be good—all of us—for less money.

Let all of us who are not Burley tobacco growers help those who are to organize. Burley tobacco is worth 15 cents a pound, and the farmer ought to realize that price. It would make him much more prosperous, and when the farmer is prosperous we are in the same boat with him.

Every school district in Washington county ought to have an A. S. of E. organization.

Hunters, partridges, foot ball players and hogs are being killed every day.

Latest reports are to the effect that Hager has stopped running.

Gov. Beckham has issued a Thanksgiving proclamation. Mr. Hager ought to issue one also.

Fallen Asleep.

Only a little dust—

So small that a rose might hide it; And I trust in God—or I try to trust, When I kneel in the dark beside it.

I kneel in the dark and say: Only dream that I weep; She would not leave me and go away— She has only fallen asleep.

Fallen asleep, as oft.

She climbed to my heart to rest, Her white arms twining my neck, as soft.

As down on a dove's sweet breast. Tenderly—unaware, Sleep came in the waning light, And kissed her there on the twilight stars.

That lead to the morning light. And that she will wake I know, And smile at a grief like this; It could not be she would leave me so, With never a good-night kiss!

So I kneel in the dark and say— I only dream that I weep; She would not leave me and go away— She has only fallen asleep.

A "MISCELLANEOUS" SHOWER.

The miscellaneous shower given this morning at 10 o'clock by Miss Sadie Ray Mayes for Miss Bettie Irvine, was one of the handsomest social functions of the season. The house was artistically and profusely decorated with potted plants. Miss Lucy Sealeman stood at a table in the reception hall and served a cup of hot chocolate to the guests as they arrived. The dining room was beautifully decorated in Southern similia and Bostonian ferns. The color scheme being green and white, the table appointments were carried out in these colors. A canopy of green shades and tapers placed on a silver mounted mirror formed the center piece; around this silver candlesticks, holding green tapers. From a chandelier to each corner of the table ribbon entwined with similia was gracefully draped, greatly enhancing the pretty effect of the table. The color was carried out in the teapots, the cakes were appropriately decorated with a tiny bride's rose and were heart shaped as were the mints also. After all the guests were served, many mysterious bundles carefully tied with dainty ribbons were brought into the room and placed on the table. Miss Irvine was invited to open them, which she did in her usual graceful manner, and displayed with originality in her various remarks and exclamations and made each one feel that their gift was appreciated. The presents were many and handsome including cut glass, silver, china, drawn work, lace, etc.

The out-of-town guests were: Mrs. Sallee, of Danville, and Miss Sue Irvine, of Lebanon.

Marry To-morrow.

Mr. Geo. L. Wharton and Miss Elizabeth G. Irvine will be married to-morrow at 10 o'clock in the Presbyterian church. Rev. W. Y. Davis, of Louisville, will officiate. Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom will leave Springfield for a bridal tour. The wedding will be one of the prettiest ever witnessed in Springfield. The church is now being appropriately decorated for the happy event.

The Sun, $1 per year.

BOMB EXPLODED

AT THE ALTAR IN ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL IN ROME

WHERE PONTIFF WAS EXPECTED.

Machine of Death Had Defect, and Worshippers Escape Unhurt—Greatest Outrage of Centuries.

Rome, Nov. 18.—A bomb was exploded in St. Peter's. The edifice was crowded, and an indescribable scene of confusion followed. There were no fatalities.

As soon as the echoes of the tremendous roar had ceased a canon caught by reassuring words to quiet the people, but in vain. They fled in all directions, and a number of women fainted.

Women and children screamed and men tried to protect their families in the crush.

The church is so large, however, that there was ample room for the crowd to scatter, and no one was injured. No trace of the perpetrator of the deed has been found.

It was the anniversary of the dedication of the basilica of St. Peter, and it was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Holy relics were exposed and a large number of the faithful attended the service. Cardinal Rampola, formerly papal secretary of state, was among those present. He took part in the service in the choir chapel. The last mass had just been concluded when the explosion occurred, and only one canon, who had not quite finished, remained at the altar of St. Petronilla. This altar is at the end of the right aisle, and it was near here that the bomb had been placed.

Like a Thunderclap.

As the canon turned to bless the communicants there was a tremendous roar, which echoed through the lofty arches of the immense dome like a thunderclap. At the same time a dense smoke spread throughout this portion of the basilica and a strong odor of gunpowder filled the air. Confusion and panic at once seized the people. The canon at the altar tried to stem the tide of fear. He shouted out:

"Do not be afraid; it is nothing, merely the noonday gun." His words, however, had little effect. They were refuted by the smoke and the pungent smell of powder, and the people continued their headlong flight. Men and women fled, stumbling in all directions, the screams of children and cries of anguish were heard on all sides, and for a few minutes it seemed as if nothing could withstand the disaster. As soon as the smoke cleared away a hasty examination showed that nobody had been hurt in the crash, and that no one had been wounded. Calm was gradually restored, and some of the people returned to view the extent of the damage.

When the first alarm was reached the spot the scaffolding was found to be smoldering, but this fire was easily extinguished. The bomb was found to be absolutely uninjured, and even the pavement shows scarcely any signs of the explosion.

The pope was engaged in his regular noonday devotion when the bomb went off. The pontiff asked anxiously if the church had been injured. Upon being reassured he fell on his knees, saying he must implore mercy for the misguided perpetrator of the deed.

SOUTH CYCLONE SWEEP.

Eight Lives Known To Have Been Lost and Buildings Demolished.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 19.—Eight persons are known to have lost their lives, scores of others are injured and property and crops suffered great damage, the extent of which, because of the meager reports yet obtainable, can not be estimated at this time as a result of one of the most violent like winds and rain storms ever experienced in this section.

The storm, which originated on the Gulf, swept northward and in its course razed scores of substantial buildings, partially demolished hundreds of others, caused a complete demoralization of railroad traffic and cut off telegraphic communication with many points in the affected territory. Cotton in the fields blown down by the wind was beaten into the ground and if not totally was badly damaged. Besides the loss of life and property damage which is known to have occurred, a number of points directly in the pathway of the storm can not be communicated with and when complete reports have been received it is feared the loss to both life and property will be greatly increased.

Returning To Ohio.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 19.—Dr. Leroy Craig has escaped from the diplomatic ward of the asylum at Lincoln and is probably making his way back to Washington C. H., O. Both Dr. Craig and his wife were committed to the asylum as confirmed cocaine fiends.

FARM LANDS and FARMS

Are Increasing in Value. If You Want to Buy Now is The Time

IF YOU WANT TO SELL YOUR FARM PUT IT IN MY HANDS.

I believe—indeed I am sure—I can save you money if you desire to buy a farm in this or adjoining counties. I have a great many farms for sale—good ones—at reasonable prices, and I am anxious to show you any one of them. Remember, that land is constantly increasing in value, and there is hardly a remote possibility that it will decrease. Indeed, the man who buys a farm today may feel absolutely certain that its value will increase a third—possibly half, or more, within a half a dozen years. I honestly believe that you can be suited in place and price, if you will call upon me. I have farms in every section of the county—large and small, and all of them are well improved. I also have some bargains in town property.

See list in this issue of The Sun.

HER THREE SUITORS

By GERALDINE KEMP

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowler.)

In her garden sat Phrygia one evening amongst the roses and the yellow elder bushes. Her summer home she called "Sweet Briar Farm," and when in it this little lady became the simplest of country maidens.

An open letter fluttered upon her knee; in fact, three open letters, each containing a proposal of marriage, or to speak more correctly, a renewed proposal of marriage, for the letters were from the aforesaid three in particular, who had pressed and who were still pressing their suit with urgency. Phrygia, as it happened, liked them all, but sure of none was at a loss to choose between them. Mr. Waldon was the cleverest; Dan Courtney the wealthiest; Harry Bond, the best looking, but of the true nature of the three, Phrygia had her doubts. Wise in her generation, she was only too keenly alive to the fact that neither wealth nor wit, nor mere outward comeliness, necessarily brought wisely content to soul or spirits.

"I don't suppose I shall get what I want, but I am going to try," she said, placing the letters in their respective envelopes, "for it is certain that if I should make up my mind to marry, it will be either Mr. Waldon, or Dan Courtney, or Harry Bond."

The letter Phrygia wrote in answer to Mr. Waldon's, forwarded to her, ran as follows:

"My dear Mr. Waldon: You wonder where I am. Well, I will tell you. I am rusticated at Sweet Briar Farm with my maid duenna, Lavinia. Grey. You used to admire her lovely white hair and the way she looked at you through her lorgnette. Will you join us? Come if you can on Wednesday next. Very sincerely, Phrygia."

And to the letter forwarded from Dan Courtney:

"Dear Dan: Do you care for green fields and cows? Nothing else but me?"

And to the letter forwarded from Harry Bond:

"Dear Harry: If you can tear yourself away from your business, or whatever else occupies your valuable attention for just one day come and see me. I shall expect you on Wednesday, Phrygia."

The letters were posted.

"Will they come?" Phrygia inquired of Lavinia.

To which Lavinia made sage reply:

"If they don't meet first at Dove-dale perhaps they will."

"But if they do?"

"Then I think they won't."

Wednesday arrived, and there being a special train by which the three could travel westward, they met, as foretold, at the little country side station, where each had alighted in quest of Sweet Briar Farm.

In quest of Phrygia!

No Other, indeed, Than Phrygia, and Lavinia! If so, come and spend a few days with us at Sweet Briar Farm. Come on Wednesday. Yours ever, Phrygia."

And to that from Harry Bond:

"Dear Harry: If you can tear yourself away from your business, or whatever else occupies your valuable attention for just one day come and see me. I shall expect you on Wednesday, Phrygia."

In quest of Phrygia!

"Well!" exclaimed Harry Bond, not over-politely, to Dan Courtney. "What in the name of fortune brings you here?"

"I was about to ask you a similar question," returned Dan, as, plainly showing his annoyance.

Meanwhile came Mr. Waldon, the sight of whom caused the other two still further discomfort.

"Let me have the pleasure," he said with an affable best, describing as princely, "of renewing my acquaintance with you. We have met before, I think, at Phrygia Dean's."

"We are destined in all probability to meet yet again at Miss Dean's," observed Courtney, stiffly, "for she has asked me to spend a few days with her at her summer retreat."

"Where it appears she has invited me of all men to bear you company," cried Bond, with a short, vexed laugh.

a voice, some minutes later in her ear Waldon, for it was he, stooped and, notwithstanding her protestations, raised the bundle to his shoulder.

"Where do you live?" asked Waldon, keeping pace with her feeble steps.

"Near the wood," came the high-pitched, sing-song reply. "Near the wood."

"You are too old to work."

"Bread must be baked and fires must be made."

"Do you live alone?"

"Granddaughter Mary lives with me now."

"Granddaughter Mary ought to assist you to gather the fuel for your fire."

"Mary's young and goes a-sweet-hearing."

"When you were young did you go a-sweet-hearing?"

"She dodged assent and hobbled more briskly forward."

"Show me where your home is," he said. "I should like to inform your granddaughter Mary that it would be more profitable to her if she cared less for her sweetheart and more for her grandmother."

"'T would be little use," quoth the grandmother. "She's young and it's but a trial."

"Natural to be thoughtless," quoth the prince. "Have you ever been out of Dovedale?"

"The latter smiled."

"I love Phrygia," she said, "but would win her only if she loved me in return. I intend that she shall ask me to Sweet Briar Farm a second time."

"Then I go along to Sweet Briar?"

"So be it."

"And you?"

"Forget that I exist."

"Do you go back to town with Harry?"

"No matter. You have your chance; take it. It is all that concerns you."

Dovedale was a small and primitive village, boasting of no vehicle except a wheelbarrow and a donkey cart. Consequently Dan Courtney, on taking leave of his rival, set forth on foot in the direction of Sweet Briar Farm.

Courtney encountered few folk on his pleasant ride to the farm. A couple of farmers—a rosy-cheeked child and an old woman were chiefly those who crossed his path. The old man bade him good evening, the little girl smiled at him, and the old woman as she passed left fall with a clatter the bundle of sticks she had been gathering in the wood. She was very bent, very gray, and very wrinkled; her face encased in a big rusty black bonnet. She was muttering and moaning strange things to herself as Dan Courtney passed her by.

But as her mutterings grew more vehement, he halted, threw her a coin and so passed on again.

Had he glanced round at the old withered poke-bonneted woman, he would have seen that a tear had glistened in her eye.

"I am very tired," she mumbled, "and the bundle is so heavy."

"Permit me to carry it for you," said

"TRUE AMERICANISM."

For what is true Americanism, and where does it reside? Not on the tongue, nor in the clothes, nor among the transient social forms, refined or rude, which mottle the surface of human life. True Americanism is this:

To believe that the unalienable rights of man to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness are given by God.

To believe that any form of power that tramples on these rights is unjust.

To believe that taxation without representation is tyranny, that government must rest upon the consent of the governed, and that the people should choose their own rulers.

To believe that freedom must be safeguarded by law and order, and that the end of freedom is fair play for all.

To believe not in a forced equality of conditions and estates, but in a true equalization of burdens, privileges and opportunities.

To believe that the selfish interests of persons, classes and sections must be subordinated to the welfare of the commonwealth.

To believe that union is as much a human necessity as liberty is a divine gift.—Henry Van Dyke, in Harper's Magazine.

STATE ODDS AND ENDS

FOOD EXPERTS

Will Decide Important Questions Relative To Kentucky Whiskey.

Louisville, Ky.—A six days' session of the United States Pure Food Standard Commission will be held in Louisville, beginning December 6. R. M. Allen, of Lexington, state pure food inspector of Kentucky, was here and received quarters at the Seelbach for the commission. Whiskey distillers are interested in the session for the reason that a standard will be decided upon for straight, rectified and blended whiskeys. Under the new law dealers will be required to brand the whiskeys as to age. Distillers will be required to brand the product as to its character, whether it is straight, rectified or blended. The members of the commission are: Dr. H. W. Wiley, of Washington, United States chemist; Dr. M. A. Sevel, of Lexington, director of the Kentucky experiment station; Dr. William Frear, holding a similar position in Pennsylvania; Dr. E. M. Jenkins, of Yale; Prof. H. E. Barnard, analyst, of Indiana; Dr. Richard Fisher, analyst, of Minnesota; Prof. Elmer Fulmer, of Washington, and Dr. Weber, of Ohio.

CINCINNATI MAN

Elected President of the Ohio Valley Medical Society.

Louisville, Ky.—The Ohio Valley Medical society elected the following officers: President, Dr. Brooks F. Beebe, of Cincinnati, who had been serving as vice president; vice president, Dr. J. L. Wiggins, of East St. Louis; second vice president, Dr. C. S. Pope, of Louisville; third vice president, Dr. A. E. Sterne, of Indianapolis; secretary and treasurer, Dr. B. L. W. Floyd, of Evansville, Ind. Various cities extended invitations for the next annual convention, which will be the ninth. The retiring president, Dr. D. M. Griffith, of Cincinnati, and the newly elected officers will select the next meeting place, Evansville, Ind., it is said.

BIG CROWD IN INITIAL HUNT.

Fox Chasers Hold Their Derby in Successful Manner.

Barstow, Ky.—The first start in the National "Foxhunting" meet was made. Two hundred hunters left the hotel. This included 40 ladies, many of whom were more enthusiastic than the men. The first cast was made two miles from Barstow, where a red fox was started, but owing to the many spectators crossing the trails the dogs became confused and lost the track. Another cast was made and a gray fox was started, which put up a 45-minute run and was hotted out in plain view of all the ladies. After this, the hunt was called off, owing to the dry condition of the ground.

CHILD ACCUSER

Of Her Father, Alleged Uxoricide, Is Placed in a Retreat.

Louisville, Ky.—Annie Belle Ely, who accuses her father, John Ely, of the murder of her mother, has been placed in a private institution by Judge C. Wilson, of the juvenile court. He entered the order, but he did not make public the whereabouts of the girl. The detectives believe that the girl even now has not told all she knows. Ely maintains his nerve and insists that he is innocent. He says that at his examination November 22 he will establish that he has no connection with the crime.

Mayking, Ky.—According to a report received from Lower Silkhorn Creek, east of here, a desperate battle was fought there between Wm. Mitchell and Esau Moore on one side and George Adams and Henry Mullins on the other, in a dispute over a land division. The report says Esau Moore was killed and Henry Mullins was desperately wounded. Further trouble is feared, although officers have gone to the scene to quell the outbreak, which is the result of an old feud.

Hunting Season Opens.

Louisville, Ky.—The hunting season in Kentucky is open. Trains leaving Louisville carried many sportsmen. Under a new law non-residents are required to procure a license if they wish to hunt in Kentucky. The fee is $25. The season will continue until January 1, during which time it will be lawful to hunt and kill quail, partridge and pheasants.

Poase Goes After Jesse Cox.

Cox's Landing, Ky.—Sheriff Bryan, of Monroe county, at the head of a large posse, left for Pea Ridge to capture, if possible, Jesse Cox, the negro who, with George Williams, another negro, murdered two policemen and wounded another in Indianapolis. Cox is surrounded by negro friends, armed with Winchester, who swear he shall not be taken alive.

MCINTIRE.

Mr. Forest Cecil, who has been visiting friends and relatives in this county, has returned to his home in Union county. Mr. Cecil was accompanied here by his brother-in-law, Mr. Polm McIntire, who may locate there. We regret losing Mr. McIntire and his estimable family from our midst but heartily welcome Mr. Keene back to his old stamping ground.

Mrs. A. Ennor has rented her farm to her son, Coley Ennor, and has gone to make her home with her brother, Mr. John Wain, of Lebanon.

Mr. Twyman Keene bought of Mr. Lud Ball 27 shots at $2.50 per head. Mr. Coley Ennor bought of T. E. Ballard nine weanling mule colts.

Mrs. Sallie Ballard is recovering from an attack of tonsillitis. The little child of Dr. Oscar Graves is quite sick at this writing. Uncle Hillary McIntire is also on the sick list.

Born, to the wife of Wat Fowler, on the fourth, a ten pound boy. Also to the wife of Sam Hall, a girl.

Quite a number of our young ladies and gentlemen attended a dance given by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Willett, of Needmore, last week.

Mr. Jeff O'Donnell and wife spent Sunday with Mr. Jim Montgomery and wife.

Tiney McIntire is visiting his uncle, Mr. Ben Cecil.

Mr. George Lear and family, of Vernon, Ind., are visiting relatives in this vicinity.

Mrs. Sallie Walker visited Mr. Will Condon and family, of Springfield, one day last week.

Mr. James McCullum, of Hardin's Creek, visited his sister, Mrs. Charlie Nally, Sunday.

Mr. Joseph Wheatley, of Fenwick, visited his cousin, Mrs. Susie Ennor, Sunday.

Miss Louie Wheatley has closed her school at Canby for the present on account of small pox.

Miss Deslie Hill visited Miss Flora Keene Saturday and Sunday.

Sells More of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy than of All Others Put Together.

The following letter from a locality where Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is well known shows by the unprecedented demand for it that the medicine sells on its own merits. Mr. Thos. George, a merchant at Mt. Elgin, Ontario, says: "I have had the local agency for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy ever since it was introduced into Canada, and I sell as much of it as I do of all other lines I have on my shelves put together. Of the many dozens sold under guarantee, I have not had one bottle returned. I can personally recommend this medicine as I have used it myself and given it to my children and always with the best results." For sale by every reliable dealer in the blue Grass.

WILLISBURG.

Since the rain we have a fine tobacco season and every tobacco grower of this section has a smile on his face. There have been several crops sold here at prices ranging from $1 to 10¢ cents.

J. W. Shirley, who attended the Vehicle Convention in Louisville last week says it was one of the grandest exhibitions ever held in the State.

The supper given by the ladies of the Christian church at this place Saturday night was well attended considering the inclement weather. Receipts were over $20.

Misses Haggle Bottom and Hattie Bowles and Ed Bowles spent Saturday and Sunday with Mrs. Nora Cheatham near this place.

Rufus Foster and family spent Saturday and Sunday with Mrs. Sue Merritt at this place.

Miss May Bell Gibbs, who spent a few days with her parents at this place, ### has returned to Daughters College at Harrodsburg.

A. B. Wells is quite ill at this writing. T. J. Miller is also on the sick list.

Mrs. Sleet Pinkston spent Saturday with Mrs. Nancy Pinkston at this place. Hess Cutsinger and wife, of Booker, spent Saturday and Sunday with Dr. S. M. Crumpe and wife at this place.

Rev. Lowens will preach here next Sunday, Nov. 25.

We were sorry to hear of the death Miss Maggie Thompson, which occurred on last Friday, November 16. The community extends condolence to the bereaved ones.

Fortunate Missourians.

"When I was a druggist, at Livonia, Mo.," writes T. J. Dwyer, now of Graysville, Mo., "three of my customers were permanently cured of consumption by Dr. King's New Discovery, and are well and strong to-day. One was trying to sell his property and move to Arizona, but after using New Discovery a short time he found it unnecessary to do so. He regarded Dr. King's New Discovery as the most wonderful medicine in existence." Surest Cough and Cold cure and Throat and Lung healer. Guaranteed by C. J. Hayden, Druggist, 50¢ and $1. Trial bottle free.

Rich and Poor Drink Most.

The drinking of intoxicants is decreasing among the middle classes of the whole world and is increasing among the very poor and the very rich. Such is the conclusion drawn from a foreign tour by John G. Woolley, once Probation candidate for president, who has returned after a thirteen months' trip abroad. "The drinking of the business and form the backbone of all the countries together," said Mr. Woolley, "the main body of people—the great middle classes—who do most of the business and form the backbone of the people—are drinking less liquor than ever before. I am forced to the opposite conclusion, however, with reference to some of the other classes—the idle classes—both poor and rich."

Postmaster Robbed.

G. W. Fouts, Postmaster at Riverport, Ia., nearly lost his life and was robbed at all comfort, according to his letter, which says: "For 20 years I had chronic liver complaint, which led to such a severe case of jaundice that even my fingernails turned yellow; when my doctor prescribed Electric Bitters, which cured me. I was weak and kept me well for eleven years. I sure cure for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Kidney and Bladder derangements. A wonderful Tonic. At C. J. Hayden's Drug store, 50 cents."
